The QS rankings methodology

The British company QS Quacquarelli Symonds Limited evaluates the best higher education institutions around the world.

It publishes the QS World University Ranking \(WUR\) and other rankings, such as these graduate course rankings, annually.

These QS rankings are based on four factors.

The first –Employer Reputation– is a global survey of more than 53,000 employers, who rate the institutions from which their most outstanding employees have graduated

The second –Academic Reputation– is a survey of more than 42,000 academic leaders and deans from around the world.

The third –Graduate Impact– consists of an evaluation of more than 27,000 successful graduates.

The fourth –Academic Data– is information provided by the institutions themselves.

“The 2022 QS Global MBA & Business Masters Rankings results fill us with pride: they are the result of the impact of our extraordinary international community of graduates and their achievements.” - Osmar Zavaleta.
