

Action for mental health! Tec teams up with the Jed Foundation

Tecnológico de Monterrey has added one more tool for looking after the mental health of its students by teaming up with the Jed Foundation.

This non-profit organization based in New York is dedicated to the prevention of suicide by young people and adults in the United States.

Juan Pablo Murra, Rector of Undergraduate and Graduate Studies at Tec de Monterrey, said that this effort is due to the rise in suicides in Latin America.

Raúl Domínguez, Vice Rector of Student Affairs, says that this partnership was formed to benefit students in 2020, a year marked by the COVID-19 pandemic.

“We’re convinced that to reach our goal, we need to create a culture of looking after ourselves and others in order to make progress in our institutional vision,” adds Domínguez.

John MacPhee, Executive Director of the JED Foundation, said that the Tec is the first school in Latin America to incorporate the Jed program.

“Schools and universities are places where a lot can be done to really boost students’ mental health,” he adds.

MacPhee said that pressure, stress, and the pursuit of academic excellence can be experiences that require a sympathetic environment and a culture of care.

Alex Tarriba, a student of clinical psychology and health sciences at Tec de Monterrey, believed it was crucial for academic institutions to look after students’ wellbeing.
